ATTENDING TO BUSINESS.

The following is the latest by Bur-dette, the truthful chronicler of the Peoria Review:

The human heart, in all its expansive, iimitless capacity for employment, takes greater pleasure in nothing more than witnessing a portly, solemn-visaged man, the embodiment of natural dignity, and importance in clothes, administer a scathing rebuke to some "smart" petty official. This morning, just such a personification of tinate dignity loomed up at the stamp window of the postoffice, and glared in gloomy and majestic displeasure at the busy clerk registering a letter before he sprang to the window and asked the stately customer what he wished. The great man did not answer for several moments. He gazed steadily and impressively over the clerk's head, and then asked, in ponderous tones: "Is there any one hrr-r-r-e who attends to business?"

The embarrassed clerk blushed, fal-The human heart, in all its expansive.

The embarrassed clerk blushed, faltered for a moment, then recovering him-self, said with characteristic and natural cheerfulness, becoming an official of the Republic: "I will see, sir." And he disappeared. He went into the other departments, tortured a carrier with an original coundrum and heard a good story in the mailing room, and came back.

"Yes, sir," he said to the great one;
there are, in addition to myself, three clerks in the letter department, one in the mailing room, four carriers, three route agents, the mail driver and a jan-

"Ah-h-h! I am glad there are so many. I may in all that number find one who is at his post."

And then he looked as impressive as a

And then he looked as impressive as a special agent, and was silent for three minutes, while the impressive clerk awaited his orders and impatient men behind him figeted and grumbled. Finally the great man said, with deep solemnity:
"I wish one three-cent stamp."

The clerk tore off the stamp and held it, waiting for the consideration. The great man made a somewhat longer pause than usual, he felt in his various vest pockets, he gradually lost his look of impressive rebuke, his chest caved in.

of impressive rebuke, his chest caved in, and he assumed an aspect of an ordinary frail mortal.

"Ah!—the fact is—I'm sure—ah—in short, I find that I have carelessly left my purse at home—can you kindly—"
The impressive clerk, with the faintest suggestion of triumph in his eye, waved the great man saide with "sorry for you, sir, but the clerk who sells on credit is not in. What does the next man want? and in. What does the next man want?
And we felt so good to see how that clerk was taken down by the dignified man that we went away and laughed for Romance of Abriemetic.—The most romantic of all numbers is the figure nine, because it can't be multiplied away or got rid of anyhow. Whatever you do it is sure to turn up again as was the body of Eugene Aram's victim. One remarkable property of this figure (said to have been first discovered by Mr. Green, who died in 1794), is that all through the multiplication table the product comes to nine. Multiply by what you like, and it gives the same result. Begin with twice nine, 18; add the digits together, and 1 and 8 make 9. Multiply by what you like and it gives the same result. Three times nine are 27; and 2 and 7 are 9. So it goes on, up to eleven times 9, which gives 99; and the digits, 9 and 9 are 18, and 1 and 8 are 9. Going on to any extent, it is impossible to get rid of the and I and 8 are 9. Going on to any ex-tent, it is impossible to get rid of the figure 9. Take a couple of instances at random. Three hundred and thirty-nine times 9 are 3,051; add up the the figures and they are 9. Five thousand and sev-enty-one times 9 are 45,639; the sum of these dicite in 97, and 9 and 7 are 9. these digits is 27, and 2 and 7 are 9

EMBALMING THE DEAD. - In the Vienna Exposition, there were several specimens of the embalming of parts of the human body. Those exhibited by Dr. Marini, of Naples, were particularly to be noted. of Naples, were particularly to be noted. One of these was a large round table made of muscles, sinews, etc., of a dark brown color, with a handsome polish. Among his other exploits he petrified Thalberg, the deceased pianist, and the widow is said to keep the corpse in her drawing-room. He also embalmed Mazzini, and so well that some of the more economical admirers of that statesman urged that the body should be set up in Rome as a statue, and thus save expense.

ENGLAND'S DEST AND WEALTH.—The national debt of Great Britain is $3,700,-000,000, and British municipal debts $500,000,000, all held by English capitalists. Bonds of other nations, including political and municipal subdivisions of other countries, are owned in England to an amount equal to the British debt. The debts of all kinds due to capitalists in Great Britain by the nations of the East yield, it is stated, $500,000,000 per annum, indicating at a general average of from 6 to 7 per cent. for interest, a principal of $8,000,000,000.

WHILE the Bishop Suffragan was preaching the opening sermon at Trinity Church, Nottingham, on Sunday, after the recent restoration of that edifice, intithe recent restoration of that editice, inti-mation was quietly conveyed to him, by the vicar, that the roof was in fames. Without the least emotion, the preacher brought the service to a close, and quiet-ly dismissed the congregation, who de-parted in perfect ignorance of the fact that they had been spared the peril of a panic.—[Bolton Guardian, Nov. 8.

The London correspondent of the Giasgow News says: It has been determined by Archbishop Manning and the English Roman Catholic hierarchy that, following the example of their Irish Episcopal brethren, there shall be established in the heart of the English metropolis a Roman Catholic University, with professors, affiliated colleges and schools, and degree-conferring powers. Monsignor Capel will, I believe, be its first chancellor or president.

THE difficulty foreigners experience in acquiring a knowledge of the English language is made apparent by the follow-ing lines:

Wife, make me some dumplings of dough; (doe)
They are better than meat for my cough; (coff)
Pray let them be done well through, (threw)
But not till they are heavy or tough, (tuff)
And now! must be off for my plough, (plow)
And the bors, when thay've had enough, (enuff)
Will keep off the flies with a bough (bow)
While the horse drinks at the trough, (trawf)

THE patent office has reached a paying basis. Its receipts during the past year paid expenses, with a surplus of $2,119. The office received in the course of the past twelve months over $701,000, and during the same period over 200,000 applications for patents, reissues and designs were made during the year, 16,000 of which were successful. The trademark applications were 375 only.

The CLIFT HOUSE, though not so well known as the Walker House—having been open but a few weeks—is first-class in all its appointments, the building being new and the furniture of the most fashiousble and elegant style. The location of this house is central and commands a splendid view of the lake and ever snow-clad mountains and surrounding scenery. Its local reputation is superior to that of any other house in the city.

With the above facilities at our command we feel assured in guaranteeling satisfaction to all. Respectfully, etc.,
